

The FCC must take a much more aggressive approach to reign in partisan politics on television and radio. There is too much leeway right now for media owners and producers to air misleading or embellished or outright false information to consumers without any consequence to the media offenders. This is not what the public wants in terms of fair and non-partisan coverage.